TO THE TEACHERS.

I wish again to call the attention of the teachers who left this county last year and went to some other county and took the examination for a certificate that if they wish their application considered they will have to file satisfactory reasons or take the examination in this county. Those failing to do so will not be recommended by me. This is absolutely a fair thing and there is no reason why that the teachers desiring a fair thing should object to this.

I wish also to make the statement that in view of the county election this year there might be a tendency on the part of some to attempt, or to have an idea that the school board or trustees, or those connected with the schools, would try to use the school as a lever in the election. I want it to be absolutely understood that the schools are not political spoils and that the teachers will be employed solely upon merit and the satisfaction they give in the schools as teachers. I want the teachers to know that any man or men who might come to you and try to influence you by promising to help you get a school is a faker. The County Superintendent has the power of recommending teachers, and past or future elections will have nothing whatever to do in the employment of teachers.

Respectfully,
BERNARD E. WHITT
Superintendent.

Alas, The Paper Men!

Pity the poor paper manufacturers! For instance, the International Paper Company enjoyed the best year in its history in 1920, the annual report showing a balance available for the common stock equal to $33.17 a share of the $19,803,920 common stock, compared with $13.24 earned in 1919. The income statement of the company and its subsidiaries disclosed total revenue of $21,936,236. The company produced 532,000 tons of paper in 1920, of which 300,000 tons consisted of newsprint, and the remaining 232,000 tons of high class papers of great variety.

The Commencement.

The Commencement of the Morgan County High School this year was one of the best that has ever been held here, and the crowds that attended the exercises proved that the people are alive to the good work that school is a record breaker in point the term just ended has done. The in attendance and interest, and indicates that the school has grown to be one of the best in the mountains.

Tuesday night was given to an entertainment by the primary and intermediate grades and the little folk demonstrated on the stage that their training had been very thorough.

Wednesday night was the recital by the music class of Prof. Earl Wood, the alumnus music teacher, and was a treat practically all the town are music lovers. West Liberty has more pianos to the number of people than any town in the State.

Thursday night was the graduation exercises of the eighth grade and there were eighteen who passed from the grades to the high school. Eld. A. O. Allison delivered the class address.

Friday night was the graduation exercises of the high school and eight young men and women were made ready for the collegiate course. Rev.

W. S. Irvine, of Jackson, delivered the class address.

On Saturday night the play, "An Average Man," was presented by the high school, and was a delight to those who attended.

On Saturday night, County Superintendent Whitt, on behalf of Mr. Floyd Arnett, presented four gold medals to the winners, one for each year of school.

The medals were offered by Mr. Arnett early in the term one to go to the student in each class for the best record as to scholarship and attendance. In the senior year the medal was won by Winfred Sparks, of town; in the third year class, by Alonzo Coffey, of Crockett; second year, Curtis Mathis, of town; first year, Everette Nickell, of town.

These medals were given by Mr. Arnett as an incentive to the students to apply themselves and to acquire a thorough education. It is in keeping with Floyd's generous ways, and the citizens deeply appreciate his thoughtfulness and his keen interest in the success of the school. Floyd informed the Courier that he contemplated making the offer of four gold medals a permanent thing and of giving them each year as an incentive to the high school students. "If in my old age I can have a few boys and girls say to me, your interest in me caused me to really try and make something better of myself I will be paid a hundred fold for the giving of the medals," said Floyd.

A Statement of My Position.

It has been reported by some that if I am elected that I will not be in favor of building roads.

I want to state to the people exactly my attitude in this matter. I am heartily in favor of good roads and will advocate the building of all the roads the county is able to build.

If I am elected County Judge I will have published each year a statement of the county's financial condition and let each citizen see how the county stands, how each dollar is expended and what for, and then I will favor all the road building the county is able to build.

Economy does not mean lack of progress. It means getting value received for every dollar expended, and making the money we have get us the most good. I am merely opposed to wasteful extravagance.

The opposition has been trying to create the impression that I would not run the race out. Don't be deceived. I am in the race to the finish and I sincerely believe that I have it won by a safe majority.

I promise the people that if I am elected I will do all in my power to enforce the law, and everybody will look alike to me. There will be no favoritism or fellows let go on account of any pull they may have. I will try to do my duty without fear or favor.

Yours sincerely,
J. V. HENRY.

The Committee Election.

The precinct committeemen elected in the various precincts Saturday met at the Court House Monday and elected W. T. Caskey, of Lenox, as Chairman and W. M. Gardner, of town, as Secretary, pursuant to a previous meeting of the committee.

The meeting Monday was marked by a spirit of harmony and the feelings that had been engendered by the contest was outwardly healed.

The agreement was carried out accordingly to schedule and what might have been a bitter fight was averted.

One contest was filed, Mrs. Will Reed, in Ward 1, contending that she was legally elected over Miss Jennie Phillips who received the credentials.

A Good Man to Vote For.

George I. Fannin, candidate for County Court Clerk, was in this section last week looking after his official prospects. Your correspondent has had a pleasant acquaintance with George for a number of years and has always found him strictly sober, industrious and of good moral habits, and we think, well qualified for the office to which he aspires. You will never rue the day that you vote for him.

Died In Oklahoma.

Word was received here that H. B. May, aged 65, formerly of this county, died at Wynona, Okla., on May 1st. He is survived by his wife, Loretta, three daughters, Mrs. J. T. Lykins, Olean, Texas; Mrs. Gordon Granger, Sapulpa, Okla.; Mrs. A. K. Nims, Yale, Okla., and six brothers and one sister. Mr. May was an excellent citizen, a kind and loving father, a devoted husband and was loved by all who knew him.

W. B. Allen, of this place and a relative of Mr. May, has gone to Oklahoma to look after the estate of the deceased.

A Correction.

In the editorial in last week's issue referring to the announcement of W. H. Stacy as a candidate for Justice we had the initials M. H. instead of W. H. as it should have been. We have known him long as Will Stacy or, more familiarly Bill, so we correct the error.

Church Benefit Sale.

On May 14, at the mouth of Long branch, two miles below Grassy Creek, there will be a sale of live stock for the benefit of the new church that will be built there. This live stock has been donated by the citizens and will be sold to the highest bidders. The stock consists of 14 head of cattle, including one thoroughbred Hereford bull, some hogs, and other stock. Everybody is invited to attend this sale and buy this stock and help the church.

HOLE IN SKULL IS CLOSED

Second Operation Of Kind At St. Clair Hospital.

Encouraged by a parallel case, which he read about in the Citizen, Peter Ramsey, 34, Wellston, has submitted to a bone grafting operation at St. Clair Hospital to close a hole in his head, the result of an accident 14 years ago.

The operation performed by Dr. Frank S. Lott, chief of staff at St. Clair Hospital, assisted by Dr. Edward Hamilton and Dr. Edward Smith, consisted of the removal of two ribs from Ramsey's right side, portions of which were grafted into a hole two inches square in his skull. The operation is said to be one of the most delicate and difficult in surgery.

Is Recovering

Physicians at the hospital Wednesday reported Ramsey on the road to recovery.

Ramsey read an article in The Citizen, April 7, last, concerning a similar operation which had been successfully performed on J. Edward Mercer, 24, of 847 W. Broad-st.

Mercer had been struck on the head by a falling beam during the construction of Mayflower Congregational Church in 1910, receiving a fractured skull.

Although operated upon immediately after the accident and parts of his skull removed, Mercer was, until his operation, a victim of epilepsy and incapacitated for work. A hole more than an inch square had been left in his head.

Hurt Years Ago.

After an operation which was performed by Dr. Lott, Mercer steadily regained his strength and health and will soon be able to return to his work.

While working in a coal mine 14 years ago, Ramsey received a fracture of the skull when flying coal from a blast struck him. Like Mercer, he was taken to a hospital, where an operation was performed, during which parts of the skull was removed and the scalp sewed across the hole.

According to Dr. Lott, Ramsey's case was more serious than Mercer's in that the hole in Ramsey's head was much larger and had been there longer.

Make Him "New Man."

Ramsey came to Columbus April 23, accompanied by his parents and brothers and sisters, who have been with him during his operation.

Unless unforeseen complications develop, Ramsey will leave the hospital a "new man" to enjoy the health he had before his accident, but minus two ribs.

Dr. Lott said that Ramsey's case was one of the most difficult that he had ever seen. In addition to the hole in Ramsey's head, which measured 2 1/4 by 1 3/4 inches, Ramsey had a cystic tumor in the hole.

Before grafting the bone in the skull, Dr. Lott had to remove a quantity of scarred tissue which had adhered to the skull, in order to cure Ramsey's epileptic condition.

Mercer, who had become deeply interested in the case because of his own experience, watched Ramsey's operation.—Columbus (O.) Citizen.

TERRELL FOR MAGISTRATE.

In this issue will be found the announcement of J. C. Terrell, of Cannel City, for the Democratic nomination for Justice of the Peace for District No. 1.

Mr. Terrell is a man of the highest character and is well qualified for the office. He is sober and would be vigorous in the prosecution of law violators. He is a good business man and would make a valuable member of the fiscal court.

We bespeak for his candidacy the earnest consideration of the voters of the district.

JUST A QUERY.

If it is not in bad taste the Courier would like to rise and inquire why it is that men can be seen almost daily under the influence of liquor and nothing done about it. And why it is apparently only a few steps to the source of supply. And why the police court can accept $3 fines for drunkenness when the statutory limit is a minimum of $10. And why it is currently reported that politicians can bring liquor in in quantities for election purposes and no attempt made to solve the mysteries.

These may be idle questions, but the people are asking them.

PARTY SERVICE.

So accustomed have the "party leaders" been to receiving the support of the newspapers that they have lost sight of the value of it. The newspaper man works fifty-two weeks in the year for the good of the party, publishes articles that if sold to advertisers would bring him many hundreds of dollars each year, takes the lead in all reform in politics, and is forgotten. But one of "the boys" in brief spell in the campaign, and he is a good party worker, can take his saddle bags of liquor, stuff his pockets with money to corrupt voters and get out and whoop'er up for a brief spell in the campaign, and he is a good party worker, when in fact he is only working for the good of some individual. Still, the newspaper man goes on year in and year out working for the upbuilding of his party and just forgets that his service is not recognized. It has long been recognized among the newspaper craft that the publisher who expects recognition for his labors for the party is "nutty," but ever and anon he has to be forcibly reminded of this fact. Fortunately, it is becoming the custom for the real beneficiaries of party politics to pay for their space and treat all political "dope" as advertising. Perhaps 'tis best.

THE NEW COMMITTEE.

Elsewhere in the Courier will be found the news item of the meeting of the Democratic County Committee and the election of a Chairman.

The selection of Mr. Caskey was satisfactory to all present and there can be no objections from any one who wants a square deal. The personnel of the County Committee is excellent, and while some of them were elected after spirited contests it seems that harmony and good will prevails generally. That is the Democratic spirit. The selection of Mr. Caskey for Chairman and of Mr. Gardner for secretary was a happy solution of a problem that seemed at one time to threaten the harmony of the Democrats and will meet with the hearty approval of the Democrats throughout the county.

There are some things I intended to say about the matter, but I will defer it to a more convenient season. Developments that are in embryo make it better that the minute discussion of the situation be left till later.

Forget all the feelings you had in the precinct elections and get ready for the common enemy in November.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Tom Shelby, a rancher, rides in to the frontier town of Ponca looking for a good time after a long spell of hard work and loneliness on the ranch. Instead, he runs into a funeral—that of Dad Calkins, a retired army man of whom little is known. A girl, still in her teens, survives Calkins.

CHAPTER II.—McCarthy, a saloon-keeper and Ponca's leading citizen, decides that the girl, now alone in the world, should marry. Shelby starts a hunt for eligible husbands and the minister goes to confer with the girl.

CHAPTER III.—She agrees to pick a husband from a score of men lined up in her home. To his consternation, she selects Shelby, who had gone along merely as a spectator. He declines the honor. Indignant, the girl dismisses the assembly. Later, Shelby goes back to make an explanation. She receives him good naturedly.

CHAPTER IV.—Leaving her, Shelby runs into two of the rejected suitors, and in a fight wounds them both. Angered at their remarks, he returns to the girl, determined to marry her, if she will have him. After his explanation she agrees to marry him.

CHAPTER V.—The wedding takes place and the couple set out for Shelby's ranch. With them is the "Kid," Macklin, whom Shelby has hired as a helper on the ranch. On the way the girl tells her husband her name is Olga Carlyle, and also tells him something of the peculiar circumstances of her life.

CHAPTER VI.—Leaving his wife in the house, Shelby goes to care for the horses. Returning, he is struck from behind by an unknown assailant. Hours later he recovers consciousness, to find that his wife and the "Kid" have disappeared. He starts in pursuit.

CHAPTER VII.—Shelby overhears a conversation between two outlaws that throws some light on his wife's history. He learns she is an heiress and that her abduction has been planned. He also learns that she has been taken to "Wolves Hole," a haunt of bandits and "bad" Indians. The whereabouts of the place is unknown to Shelby, though its reputation as a resort of criminals is widespread.

CHAPTER VIII.—Shelby lays plans to rescue his wife. He is discovered by "Indiana Joe" Laud, the leader of the outlaws, and forced to accompany him into the stronghold. There Shelby makes friends with a Mexican girl, Pancha, who is betrothed to Macklin and intensely jealous.

CHAPTER IX.—Imprisoned by Laud, Shelby escapes with Pancha's help. She guides him to a secure hiding place but refuses to reveal the whereabouts of his wife.

CHAPTER X.—After a night's rest Shelby leaves his shelter, seeking his wife's prison. He discovers it, an old log cabin, and finds Olga. Their reunion is interrupted by the arrival of Macklin.

CHAPTER XI.—Confident that Shelby is dead, believing him to have been killed at the ranch, Macklin declares his intention of marrying Olga, the widow Laud appears, and while they are talking Macklin is shot by a concealed assassin. Shelby fights with Laud, but is worsted, and the outlaw escapes. He returns with friends, and Shelby and his wife defend the cabin.

CHAPTER XII.—During a lull in the fighting the pair discover that the body of Macklin has disappeared. Seeking an explanation, they find a secret passage beneath the floor and take refuge in it. The cabin is burned but they are in safety. Laud and his desperadoes naturally suppose both Shelby and his wife have perished in the burning cabin.

CHAPTER XIII.—In the passage Shelby and his wife come upon the Mexican girl, Pancha, and Macklin. She had intended to kill Laud but shot her lover. The three carry Macklin to a hidden place. Pancha sets out on horseback to bring a doctor to aid Macklin.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Story of a Plot.

It was Macklin, burning with fever, delirious, yet partially conscious once more, uttering sounds which could hardly be distinguished as words, and struggling vainly to lift his body into an upright position. Through the dusk of the place he stared dully into Shelby's face, at first without recognition; then his eyes exhibited terror and he endeavored to wrench away, covering back against the rock wall, as though he beheld a ghost. The horror he felt gave volume to his voice.

"Good God!" he shrieked. "Am I dead? Is this hell?"

"No, Kid," and Shelby held him firmly, his tone full of sympathy, "everything is all right. Lie still and don't worry."

"But who the h—l are you? Ain't you Tom Shelby?" he laughed wildly.

"Lord, no; he's dead!"

"That is where you are wrong, my boy. I'm Shelby all right, but a long ways from being dead."

"You, Shelby? Didn't he get you?"

"Well, yes, he got me, but not quite strong enough. I failed to stay got. You lie down, and be still. Here, take a drink of this."

The fellow did as he was ordered, his hands shaking so that Shelby had to hold the bottle to his lips. Even as he drank greedily, his eyes never deserted the other's face; until the girl, creeping silently up behind, came also into his range of vision. Her presence seemed to give him a sense of reality.

"Say, this is too much for me," he said huskily, but lying back quiet, "the two of yer here, just what's happened anyhow? It was Pancha, wasn't it, who hauled me out o' that cabin. Well, where's Pancha? an' what the h—l is this place I'm in?"

"Let me tell him, Tom," broke in Olga, pressing forward, and lifting his head into her lap. "He will believe me, and he is afraid of you yet. You can hear what I say, Mr. Macklin?"

He nodded, gasping, his eyes on her face.

"Then listen closely. It will only take a moment to explain. You were shot—"

"Yes, yes," he stammered, "I know; she did it."

"Oh, you saw, then, who fired. It was all a mistake, and she was so sorry. The bullet was meant for Indian Joe Laud, but you stepped in the way."

"Pancha tried to kill Laud?"

"Yes; it was all on account of me. You—you carried me off because you believed I had the right to some money, didn't you?"

His eyes brightened, but still with the dull glow of fever in them.

"Sure; you got it comin', too. But what's that got to do with Joe Laud? He wasn't noway hooked up on this game."

"Oh, yes, he was. I'll explain all that. You told something to a man named Matt Hanley once."

"Me? Maybe I did, when we was drunk together over at Gerlasche. I'd just found out 'bout it then. But he never remembered—Hanley didn't."

"Yes, he did, and he kept watch on you ever since; he and a fellow, Slagin. They were somewhere up the valley the night you brought me in here, and they knew what was up. They followed, meaning to get you put out of the way somehow, so they could get hold of me themselves. I guess they didn't have brains enough to make it. I don't know exactly what happened, but after Slagin got killed—"

"I—I was that what that guy came to the cabin for?"

"We suppose so; at least that was what caused Hanley to tell the story to Indian Joe Laud, and get him to take a hand. They tried to get the Mexican, Pancha's brother, to help them, but something brought on a quarrel, and Laud killed him. An Indian boy told Pancha, and she went crazy over you both. That was what brought her to the cabin."

"An' that ol' devil come there to get me, did he?"

"Yes, but first he tried to learn all he could; things Hanley didn't know, so he could make the job worth while. Then Pancha tried to shoot him, and got you."

He struggled to speak.

"Say, lift me up a little more. That's it; something seems to fill up in my throat. You sure she didn't hear nothin' I said there—'bout leavin' her, an' marryin' you?"

"I know she didn't."

"Lord, I'm sure glad o' that. I sorter thought that was what she plugged me for; that would be the Mex of it; they're h—l on that sort o' thing. I like her, she's a good scout. Why ain't she here? Where is she now?"

"She has gone for a doctor; went down into the Hole to get a horse to ride."

"Where is she goin'?"

"Gerlasche; there's an army surgeon there."

"Yes, I know," wearily, "an' where you got me?"

"In a small cave part way up the bluff."

"Sure, Eagle's cave. Pancha took me up yere once, an' showed it to me. An' you two lugged me all that ways?"

"Yes."

He struggled to force back the obstruction in his throat.

"Well, what did you do that for?" he asked almost savagely. "That's what I don't get through my nut. I ain't done nothin' to make either one of yer decent ter me. I thought Shelby here was deader'n a doornail, an' I reckon you know what I was aimin' ter do with you. There ain't no use beatin' about the bush. So now, what'd yer do it for?"

Shelby's hand reached out and touched that of his wife.

"Well, Kid, I'll tell you," he said frankly, "we did it for Pancha."

Macklin grinned grimly, exposing his teeth.

"I reckoned that was 'bout the truth," he said recklessly. "But I'll tell yer one thing—Pancha's never goin' ter get back before I slide out. I got what's comin' to me, an' there ain't no doc ever goin' ter hold me back from goin'—that's straight, ol' man."

"I'm not so sure, Kid."

"Well, I am. Lord, a man generally knows when he's got his dose, I reckon; an' it ain't goin' ter do nobody no good fer me ter keep my lips shut. Say, lady, you let your man put his shoulder back o' me, an' hoist me up higher. There, now maybe I can get this thing off my chest."

"You want to explain something?"

"Sure; didn't I tell you. I ain't goin' ter leave this game wide open fer Indian Joe to cash in on. You been decent to me, an' I'll play white as I can."

He spoke slow, hesitatingly, as though his mind wandered, stopping every moment or two for breath. Once he coughed sharply, an expression of pain on his face, but he went grimly on.

"I'd been on considerable of a bat down there, an' was soberin' up. You know the Custer house?"

"Yes; the old hotel."

"Well, it ain't no palace; you could throw a cat through them partitions

"I Got What's Comin' to Me."

In places; an' I woke up to hear a couple o' guys talkin' in the next room. First I didn't care what they was sayin', an' then I begun to take an interest. Seems one of 'em was a lawyer from Kansas City, or Omaha; an' the other gazzabo was a rich guy from down East, who was huntin' a niece who had disappeared out in this country—the name was Churchill—"

"Is your name Churchill?"

"Mine! Not in a thousand years. That was all a lie. Well, as near as I could get hold of the story, this yer girl's mother was nursin' in Richmond durin' the war, an' fell in love with a Yank an' married him. She never know'd she was no heiress, an' didn't dare go home 'cause she'd married a Yank. Her people didn't get on to it for a long while, an' then, I reckon, they didn't get the story straight. Maybe they didn't try very hard—anyhow she'd dropped plum outer sight. Later they found out somehow that she'd married a regular army officer, named Carlyle, an' gone West with him. I dunno just what delayed 'em after that, but afore they got these folks located the woman died, leavin' a little girl, an' her husband—he was a colonel by that time—put her into a Catholic school. Meanwhile, the color ne got on to some extent, an' began to make inquiries down East; but, before he accomplished much, he got mixed up one night in a street fight down in Sheridan, an' would have been killed if it hadn't been for a sergeant he had with him named Calkins. He got him home alive, but he croaked later. That left the kid alone at school, but these folks didn't know where."

"It was in St. Louis."

"Sure, they found out later, but by that time she'd gone. This yer old sergeant, Calkins, had come with a power of attorney, or something, an' got her out. That's where I first begun to get real interested—after this fellow Calkins got into the game. I'll tell yer why I got it into my nut that maybe I'd hit a hot trail, where, if it panned out all right, there might be some bottle in it for me. I run steers for the XI, about four months once, and we used to drive into Ponca to blow ourselves. I knowed there was an ol' fellow hangin' 'round there, in McCarthy's place mostly, a sorter tin-horn sport, they called Ol' Dad Calkins; an' I'd heard somewhere he had a girl livin' with him 'bout seventeen, or so. Somehow I got to mullin' over this, an' finally decided to see what kind of a lead I'd struck. It looked like easy money, if she was the girl, an' didn't know yet what was up."

"You went to Ponca for that purpose?"

"Just prospectin' like. Then other two guys went off somewhere else, an' so I had easy sailin'. I couldn't get next the girl at all. I reckon she never left the shack; but I got a look at her, an' it wasn't no trouble to pick up an acquaintance with Ol' Dad. He was tight-mouthed, though, drunk or sober, an' finally I had to throw the fear of God into him to make him spill."

"You mean you threatened him?"

"Yep! I never supposed it would shake the guts out of him the way it did, though. The old fool went plum batty when I told him what I knowed! He thought I was after him—a dete-
